

Hong Kong - Quality Migrant Admission Scheme Procedure and Fees

Under the general trend of global competition for talents, Hong Kong has launched the Hong Kong Quality Migrant Admission Scheme (QMAS) since June 2006 to attract international technical talents. It is usually conducted on a quarterly basis, with the quota increasing to 4,000 per year starting from 2021. Applicants must meet the prerequisites and obtain points under one of the two points-based test to compete with other applicants under the scheme without having an advance employment appointment by a Hong Kong company. Applicants may apply for accompanying dependent visas for both their partner and children but are required to pay for their accompanying relative's accommodation and board and lodging in Hong Kong.

The QMAS is a quota-based entrant scheme under which applicants are subject to a five-stage selection process. The quota for the relevant industry will be allocated after the Director of Immigration regularly seeks advice from the Advisory Committee on Admission of Talents and Professionals. It is important to note that if an applicant fails to obtain points in Stages 1 and 2 of the selection mechanism, the application will be rejected immediately by the Hong Kong Immigration Department. Applicants may evaluate their scores first before application submission. For the scoring criteria, please refer to Part 3 of this quotation.

3. Eligibility Criteria

There are total 5 stages for the QMAS selection mechanism. The visa will be issued after all documents verified and all application procedures are finalized.

Stage 1: Prerequisites - Applicants must satisfy all the following prerequisites

- (1) Age: The applicant must be aged 18 or above when lodging an application under the Scheme.
- (2) Financial requirement: The applicant must be able to demonstrate that he/she is capable of supporting and accommodating himself/herself and his/her dependents, if any, on his/her own financial resources without relying on public assistance during his/her stay in Hong Kong.
- (3) Good character: The applicant should not have any criminal record or adverse immigration record in Hong Kong or elsewhere.
- (4) Language proficiency: The applicant should be proficient in written and spoken Chinese (Putonghua or Cantonese) or English.
- (5) Basic educational qualification: The applicant must have a good education background, normally a first degree from a recognized university or a tertiary educational institution. In special circumstances, good technical qualifications, proven professional abilities and/or experience and achievements supported by documentary evidence may be considered.

Stage 2: Points-based test – Applicants who fulfill all prerequisites can choose either one of the following tests for advance points

- (1) General Points Test: There are 6 point-scoring factors with minimum passing mark (currently set to 80 points) *. Applicants are advised to assess whether their credentials are adequate to meet minimum passing mark before submission. (detailed in Reference 1)
- (2) Achievement-based Points Test: There is 1 point-scoring factor and caters for the entry of individuals with exceptional talent or skill who have outstanding achievements. The requirement under this test is very high. Any one of the criteria under this test listed are fulfilled will be awarded 225 points.
 - (a) The applicant has received an award of exceptional achievement (e.g. Olympic medals, Nobel prize, national/international awards); OR

- (b) The applicant can show that his/her work has been acknowledged by his/her peers or has contributed significantly to the development of his/her field (e.g. lifetime achievement award from industry).
